"Behold, I am with you all days until the end of the world," Jesus said to his apostles. Today, we celebrate the day of Jesus' departure. On one hand, because he goes to heaven to his Father, and on the other we celebrate the promises in which Jesus says that by leaving to the Father he will remain with us until the end. So, we celebrate the Lord Jesus staying with us here on earth until the end. We know farewells can be very difficult. Most often it is difficult to say goodbye to a person or people very close, and who we will probably not meet again. It is especially hard when we say farewell to the closest people who are dying. The pain breaks the heart, tears push themselves into the eyes, nostalgia and sadness, despair, anger ... we can see many different symptoms in ourselves. The process of returning to what we associate as normality takes time and stages. Let's look at the apostles. Jesus prepared them for this moment of departure for three years. He talked about the subject of death, resurrection and departure many times.

Did the apostles understand this, probably not. Some things need time and maturity. Maturity is understanding; arranging everything and the difficult acceptance of reality. And yet, Jesus did not give up; He talked and taught them what was to come. At the same time, he often reminded them what they will be doing when this time would come. They probably forgot their impressions. As we heard today during the first reading; "Men of Galilee" they said "why do you stand here looking into the sky? This same Jesus, who has been taken from you into heaven, will come back in the same way you have seen him go into heaven." What does it mean? Why do you stand here? Go! You are to be my witnesses. So go now. The world is your field of activity and people living in it. There is a lot of work! And Jesus began with this, a handful of chosen people, to go out to gather those who remained outside the fold. For everything to function well, you also need to take care of what is already collected. That is, people and their families, relationships, life, values, and decisions. All this has to be maintained, and if necessary, corrected and made better.

In a land there was a school of spirituality. In this school was an older man who was of medium height, not too fat, not too thin. He dressed poorly and did not care about his image. He had many students. One day the students noticed that their master was looking at them very interestingly and differently as usual. After two days they asked the master what happened and why he looked at them like that? In response they heard, "I am looking for my successor to be like me". The next day and for the next week students tried to become like the master. The race began. They put on untidy clothes, the tall ones tried to slouch, and the short ones tiptoe, and so it was with everything. Everyone was even at the hairdresser, so that they could get their hair cut short like his. Every day the master walked between them, looked at them and asked aloud, "who would be my successor? It must be someone like me, someone very similar!" Everyone started to become similar, but the master did not announce who would be his successor, i.e. a student to whom he would pass on everything he knew. One day a new student came to the school. He was very tall, had longer hair, walked strangely, and dressed well. After two days the master said. The new one that came will be my successor. The other students were startled and started asking, but why? He doesn't look like you! Which the master responded, "that's right! He is just like me. I'm not trying to be like anyone else either."

Ps.

You'll be unique when you find your own unique shape that you are already. It is not what you think of yourself but what God gave you. And only in God can you find and understand you.

Fr. Janusz
